Copy the eye on the left onto the right side.
Dont be shy about erasing and trying again,
fixing mistakes early on is a good habit!

For these worksheets we will focus on actually drawing instead of going through a bunch of theory. Studying the anatomical makeup of the eye is only useful after we are comfortable drawing and know where to adjust.

For the eyebrows first start with some light guidelines of the basic shape of the eyebrows first and then start laying in the hairs.

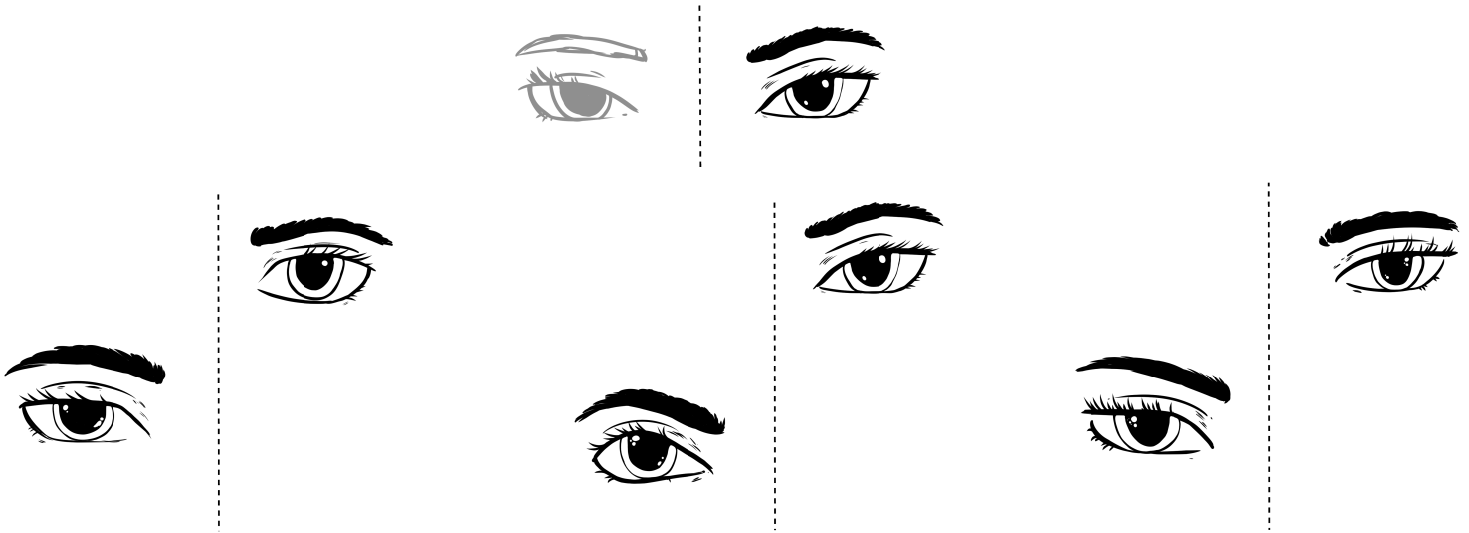

Draw the hairs flowing from the bottom center towards the top outer side. (bottom left towards top right for the right eye and bottom right to top left for the left eye)

For the next exercise we will be drawing the opposing eye, like the example below

Draw some eyes from memory in the space below

Shading

To give the eyes more dimension we will add shading to the area below the upper eyelid and between the top of the eye and the eyebrows.

Copy the drawings on the left onto the right
